

I'M JUST SAYIN' ...

...with Pat Stacho

It's me again! Did you really think I had nothing to say?? I will admit, it was touch and go there for a bit. With all that's going on, I didn't know whether to laugh or cry.

So I took a shower, cried a little, then laughed at myself, dried off and here I am!!

I was feeling blue. (June 21st marked the 4th anniversary of my son Rick's death). Then I literally could hear Rev. Kren in my ear, whispering... "God's plans". I remember so many things he said, and I got past the pain. So once again I'm just saying.

Like all of you it's been a rough 4 months or so. So I decided to focus on the GOOD things. And there are a lot of good things. I finally found yeast at the store. And toilet paper, the two ply! Diet cream soda is back at Kroger. Gas is cheaper, no place to go, but it's cheaper.

My son brings us dinner...and checks on us...

thanks Scott .

My neighbor planted some mums in my yard...thanks Gwen.

All things considered I am feeling better day by day. My clothes are looser. Of course I have been in pajamas just about every day! (Don't judge me folks! We're in the midst of a crisis) I've found time to catch up on my reading. I didn't realize how many books I have. Got a lot of catching up to do!

I finally cleaned out the "junk" drawer. Anybody know if a Jimmy Carter campaign button is worth anything? Let me know if you're interested.

Yep, lot of good things going on. But I still will be glad when all the madness comes to a halt. I hope you all are praying for our future. God is listening, I believe it with all my heart and soul. Give Him something to hear from us. (Sorry. No complaining please! No time for that)

Now, if you'll excuse me, I have a handsome detective just about to solve a murder. At least I hope it's in the next chapter!

Until next month, keep smiling, keep praying
And please, keep me in your prayers!

I'm just saying.